Nickle's Corner is a family restaurant with a difference. Besides having an excellent chef, the menus feature tasty dishes that cost $10 to $13 for lunch and $15 to $17 for dinner. This unpretentious restaurant has interesting decor, including a huge mural of a city centre in the 1950's, a collection of Saskatchewan license plates and hubcaps from cars on the walls. The food is the main attraction and unless you are... read more. What User doesn't like about Nickle's Corner:

we thought of a meal, there was another table occupied. we were not greeted at the entrance. we sat and waited and waited. the male server came to our table and brought us water. then he went without explaining the ordering system. we were never there and we are not told that there were no menus and the huge chalkboard menu. we saw the menu and sat down again, we waited and waited. the male server never came back. we...
