This is the fanciest restaurant in town, with an extensive French-cuisine steak-and-seafood menu, and high prices to match. In my three visits to the St-Francois the food has been good, but never memorable or worth the cost in my opinion. On the last visit my "filet mignon" was tough, and was cooked more than the rare (saignant) that I ordered -- which was probably a good thing. Appetizers were swimming in garlic butt...
