What User likes about Donair Town:

I found this location while searching for halal food when I was walking to Stanley Park. I had food from this location twice on my trip and the consistency was maintained. This here my friend was one of my best experience of donair kabab in Canada. The portion sizes were great. The plate came with plenty of tender juicy meat topped with garlic and hot sauce sided with rice, hummus, salad and pita bread. I had the mix... read more. The rooms in the restaurant are wheelchair accessible and can also be used with a wheelchair or physiological limitations, Depending on the weather conditions, you can also sit outside and be served. What User doesn't like about Donair Town:

The chicken they serve has been one of my favourites for a long time. Recently they raised their prices quite significantly making them more expensive than others. What is most worse is that the fries cost $4 for a portion and we found like 16 pieces in it! So no more fries ever for sure. I also wonder if the owner has changed. I don't the original guy there anymore, instead there is a curt man who growled when I poin... read more. At Donair Town in Vancouver, there are tasty sandwiches, healthy salads and further snacks for quick hunger, as well as hot and cold drinks, The dishes are usually prepared in a short time and fresh for you. For those for whom this is not enough, to persuade themselves to visit the Donair Town, the smell of fresh flatbread or the tasty, sticky sweetness that fresh baklava promises might help - the Middle East is definitely closer than one thinks, and the visitors of the establishment are thrilled with the Greek dishes.
