We stopped for a quick lunch before the whale trip: the lobster roll alone was worth the journey. I'm told this is fresh prepared in the morning lobster and not frozen like others. To my untrained mouth you could tell - it was amazing. Also a total bargain at $11.50 (min 5 dollars less than anywhere else we can find) no doubt as the lobster is caught by the guy who runs the whale watching! read more. When the weather is good you can also have something outside. What User doesn't like about Petit Passage Cafe:

I wouldn't necessarily recommend a special trip out to this cafeteria-style eatery, but Petit Passage Cafe more than met our needs for a casual lunch after our whale-watching tour. Despite having to deal with a never-ending line of customers, the staff didn't seem stressed, even indulging my hunt for the biggest lobster in their live tank. While it would be an exaggeration to rate our meal as being above-average (hen... read more.
