I'm old, fussy and tired of the same old greasy restaurant food so when my friend suggested a different restaurant with a different cuisine my sister and I jumped at the chance to join her. None of us had ever tried Peruvian food so we didn't know what to expect. Our waiter, J.R, was knowledgeable, friendly and tons of fun. He explained what everything was and treated us to some roasted corn which we couldn't get eno... read more. The place also offers the possibility to sit outside and have something in pleasant weather. What User doesn't like about Culantro Peruvian Cookery:

Food is below average and it's not really close to a real Peruvian food. Portions are very small and pricey. Also owner is kind of impolite with some people. If you want to taste peruvian food better go to Machupichu restaurant at Oakville, you will notice the difference read more.
