My wife and I were leaving the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts and looking for a place close to where to take a light meal before we left for quebec. we notice the signpost showing the reason for business of this café located in a half basement on the crescent street and decide to enter it: total change. This is a small coffee where hundreds of Swiss clocks are exposed. We ordered a pannini with brie and pesto cheese as... read more. When the weather is nice you can also have something outside. What User doesn't like about Cafe De La Pendulerie:

It was raining so we took the shelter in this small cosy cafe. We haven't had anything to eat, although they are serving Swiss salads, hot-dogs and sandwiches. However their hot chocolate was pretty good. I liked it especially because I'm lactose intolerant and I could get my chocolate without any milk. Try chili dark chocolate. Gives you nice kick :) read more.
