I always like eating in the courtyard surrounded by 1840-1860 era buildings. It's away from traffic, and always a treat in ambience. We had not been at the Courtyard for a few years, and found the food still consistently excellent. The trout mouse appetizer was full of lovely surprises, with caponata on the he side. Our main courses had lots of interest as well like the couscous with cranberry and apricot, which set o... read more. The diner and its premises are wheelchair accessible and thus usable with a wheelchair or physiological limitations, and there is free WiFi. If the weather conditions are right, you can also eat outside. What User doesn't like about Courtyard Restaurant:

A wonderful venue, We were expecting so much more. the food was bland and ill prepared. A pricy meal is what we expected However we had much better food, half the price, at the pub down the street.
