What User likes about Liberty Noodle:

I went there for lunch and couldn't decide what to order as everything looked really good. I ordered the ginger chicken soup which was very good and the service was really fast. read more. What User doesn't like about

Liberty Noodle:

Your run-of-the-mill mall food court quality. Don't go in with any expectation and you should be fine. I gave it a try because most of the other shops sell fried or grilled food and I wanted something less dry. The two pieces of meat were chewy/rubbery. Noodles and soup were bland. read more. A visit to Liberty Noodle is particularly valuable due to the extensive range of coffee and tea specialties, there are also delectable vegetarian recipes in the menu. menus are prepared typically in the Asian style. Furthermore, the customers love the creative combination of different dishes with new and partially experimental ingredients - a nice example of successful Asian Fusion.
