We missed the main entrance to the IKEA shopping plaza and what a stroke of luck that we find this little hidden gem. The pierogis are as authentic as you will find, similar to grandmothers. We stuck with the staples of potato cheese with onion and sauerkraut with mushroom. The proprietor let us try a couple complimentary as we bought 2 dozen to take back to the USA. I can get cheaper in the states but considering th... read more. What User doesn't like about Perogies Takeout:

We came here for the first time to try authentic Russian Ukrainian cuisine. I got the perogi platter and the Babas visit platter. The front cashier attendant took our pierogies and microwaved them, two of the flavours were very bland and all of the pierogies came out soggy. The cabbage roll was not to our liking and not similar to other authentic cabbage rolls we've had in the past. And the beet salad was subpar. Felt... read more.
